Secretary Taft Transmits Report On The Philippine Commission To The President.

HOLDS DUTIES ARE HIGH AS YET

Suggests That The Tax On Sugar And Tobacco Should Not Be More Than Twenty-Five Per Cent Of Dingley Rate.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]

Washington, Jan. 16.—An appeal for a reduction of the tariff on sugar and tobacco imported from the Philippines to the United States to not more than 25 per cent of the Dingley rate is contained in the annual report of the Philippine commission, transmitted to the president by Secretary Taft.

Great stress is laid on the necessity of upbuilding the commercial institutions of the islands, and in this line the commission makes the following recommendations:

"That authority be given the commission with the approval of the president and secretary of war, to issue bonds from time to time for future improvements, not to exceed $5,000,000 in the aggregate.

"Legislation exempting all bonds issued by the Philippine government or any of the provincial or municipal governments, not only from federal or Philippine taxation, but from state, county and municipal taxation in the United States.

"That control of the shipping in trade between the islands be left wholly in the discretion of the Philippine commission, subject to the approval of the president and secretary of war.

Coastwise Law.

"That the application of the United States coastwise navigation laws to the trade between the Philippine islands and the mainland of the United States be postponed by congressional action until July 1, 1909, or in the alternative, that the coastwise laws of the United States be not made applicable to the trade between the islands and the mainland of the United States except under a proviso or condition that the rates upon imports from the Philippines into the United States shall not pay duty in excess of 25 per cent of the Dingley tariff.

"Congressional action authorizing Philippine commission, with the approval of the president and secretary of war, to encourage railroad construction in the islands by accompanying the grants or franchises, when deemed necessary, with a guaranty of income on the amount of the investment, to be fixed in advance in the act of guaranty, the amount of income guaranteed not to exceed annually 4 per cent of the fixed principal.

"That the amount of land which may be acquired by any individual or corporation be extended to 25,000 acres, and that the law which forbids the filing of more than one mining claim by the same individual upon a lode or deposit be repealed.

"Legislation authorizing the commission to make reductions on present and future tariff schedules when in its opinion to do so will be in the public interest; also to provide proper machinery for the extradition of fugitives to and from the islands."

COUNTY BUILDING IN CHICAGO BURNING

Fire Broke Out in the Top Story of the Building This Morning.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.] Chicago, Jan. 16.—Fire, originating from oils and paints on the upper floor of the county building at nine this morning, caused a panic among a thousand or more of the employees in the building and the city hall adjoining. Four of the court rooms and many valuable court records were destroyed. A painter named Edwards was seriously burned. Two workmen are missing. The loss has not yet been estimated. Later it is reported two painters and a fireman were seriously burned. The fire was confined to the county building. The courts suspended for the day.

Bicyclist Fractured Skull.
Havana, Jan. 16.—Dr. Clark, known as "Diavolo," a bicyclist, during a performance at Cienfuegos, was probably fatally injured. While alighting after a leap his bicycle broke, smashing "Diavolo's" face and fracturing his skull.

Robber Is Shot Dead.
Monaca, Pa., Jan. 16.—Two masked men attempted to rob the home of Abraham James and Sarah Lanz, in Hanover township, and one of them was shot and instantly killed by William McHenry, employed as a guard.

Peace General in Islands.

With regard to governmental conditions in the islands, the report states that not a single organized band of ladrones is to be found in Luzon, that nearly all of the leaders except five or six have been killed or captured, and the same may be said of the Visayan islands with the exception of Samar. It is added that there is no reason to suppose these conditions are anything except permanent.

"All Filipinos who are entitled to be called leaders of public opinion have definitely cast their lot with the Americans," says the report. It is added that no further trouble is expected with the Sulu Moros.

Luke White's annual report as civil governor states that with the exception of a very few provinces marked progress has been made in the cultivation of fields and the production of crops as compared with the preceding year. Life and property are now safe to a degree never before experienced by the people, and the outlook is declared to be more favorable for years past.

Good Word for Moros.

In his report as civil governor of the Moro province Gen. Wood has a good word to say for these people, as follows:

"With all their faults, the Moros are brave and honest and under good laws and an honest government in time will give a good account of themselves.

"In his letter transmitting these reports to the president, Secretary Taft refers to the report of the opium commission which visited various countries of the Orient to investigate the methods of regulating the opium traffic and to recommend a proper opium law for the Philippines. The secretary says the plan of the opium committee ought to be adopted with one variation. Instead of a government monopoly for three years, a very high license should be instituted, with sale of the drug only to officially registered smokers, and a total prohibition of the sale of opium after three years, except for medical purposes.

Church Dispute Near End.
The secretary says a bill referring to the controversies between the Roman Catholic church and the new so-called Independent Filipino Catholic church has been drawn by Gov. Wright, and has been sent to the department for suggestions. The bill doubtless will be enacted about Feb. 1, and it is hoped that the disputes will be ended before the close of the present year.

The secretary says the customs laws of the islands originally adopted, have not proved entirely satisfactory, and he expects soon to frame a bill amending the tariff law for transmission to congress.

BROTHER ODD FELLOW MURDERS A POLITICIAN

Two Men Are Found Dead Facing Each Other in Barber Shop With Bullets in Brain.

Yeadersburg, Ind., Jan. 16.—John Brant, a well known Democratic politician, and Charles Eckburg, financial secretary of Odd Fellows' lodge of this city, were found at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon sitting facing each other in a barber shop, both dead from bullets in the brain.

Brant was a member of a committee appointed by the lodge to investigate Eckburg's books and a letter, on Eckburg's person spoke of intended suicide and that he "would carry Brant with him."

Until the letter was found it was supposed that the two men had quarreled and fought in the barber shop which they entered early Sunday morning. Pistol shots were heard, but the sound was muffled and could not be located.

Eckburg's letter, addressed to the public, shows that he had planned to assassinate Brant and for that purpose invited him to the shop.

The revolver was found in a cuspidor near Eckburg's body.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.] New Uim, Minn., Jan. 16.—Dr. Koch went on the stand today in his own behalf. He was well dressed and smiling. He told of his whereabouts on the night of Gebhard's murder, accounting for every moment satisfactorily.

JEFFRIES' FATHER A MORMON.
Proacher Who Reared Pugilist Is Missionary to Australia.

Honolulu, Hawaii, Jan. 16.—Five Mormon missionaries, including Rev. A. C. Jeffries, the father of "Jim" Jeffries, the prize fighter, are in Honolulu, stopping over her one steamer en route to Australia. Preaching on the street corners, they collect great crowds of attentive people. They neither beg nor do they take up collections. They are long-haired religious exhorters and warn their hearers that the end of the world is not far away, when Christ shall come again to take charge of terrestrial affairs.

PATIENT IN DASH FOR HOME.

Aged Man Doomed to Die Jumps From Hospital Window.

Dubuque, Iowa, Jan. 16.—Almost blind and on the brink of the grave, Casper Findley, aged 88, who recently underwent an operation for his eyes, jumped from the first story window of a local hospital, tore the bandages from his eyes and made his way to a store several blocks distant. He called his son from the country by telephone and begged to be taken home, as he realized that he had but a short time to live and he preferred to die on the old homestead.

RIOTS FRIGHTEEN THE OFFICIALS

Russian Statesmen Look for Some Loophole for Peaceful Overtures.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.] St. Petersburg, Jan. 16.—It is admitted in official circles that anxiety prevails throughout the empire, including St. Petersburg itself. This state of affairs is attributed to the fall of Port Arthur and the fact that a defeat in Manchuria is anticipated. Russian statesmen, it is admitted, are casting about for means of bringing the war to an end. A dispatch from Lodz reports that rioters yesterday hoisted red flags and fired fifty shots. At the police, wounding one officer. The police replied, killing a standard-bearer of the rioters. Sixteen of the disturbers were arrested.

JUDGE MINER IS ON THE STAND

Former Supreme Court Judge of Utah Gives His Testimony.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.] Washington, Jan. 16.—Judge James A. Miner of Salt Lake, formerly a member of the supreme court of Utah, again testified this morning in the Smoot inquiry. He said Smoot had always stood for the enforcement of the laws and was regarded as one of the coming men of the state. Polygamy was decreasing so rapidly, the witness said, that he believed in ten years Utah would be better in this regard than any state in the union. "There is no more polygamous or unlawful cohabitation in Utah than there is in New York or the district of Columbia," the witness added. Elias A. Smith of Salt Lake, a cashier of the Desert Savings bank, was a Mormon and a member of the people's party until it was dissolved. He denied the church dictated the political affiliation for its members. He said every person was free to follow his own inclinations.

MUSIC PREVENTS FIRE PANIC

Orchestra Director Quells Stampede in a Milwaukee Playhouse.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 16.—A fire panic in the Star theater was averted Sunday night by the coolness of the management and the presence of mind of the orchestra director. The Tiger Lillies company was presenting vaudeville to a crowded house. The moving picture films caught fire and blazed up in an instant. Someone in the gallery shouted "Fire!" and the crowd of men and boys in the third gallery made a wild break for the fire escape. Several windows were broken and 150 persons scrambled as best they could down the stairs. The asbestos curtain was quickly lowered when the first alarm was given. At this juncture the orchestra stood up and played vigorously and the panic was averted almost instantly.

Self Confessed Dynamiter Laughs At The Police As He Tells His Story.

TRIED TO DESTROY OCEAN BOAT

"Gessley Rosseau," He Calls Himself, And Then Says That Is Not His Own Name--Wonderful Tale Is Told.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 16.—"Gessley Rosseau," who was arrested in this city on Jan. 11 with an unloaded infernal machine in his possession, admitted to the police Sunday that he attempted to destroy the statue of Frederick the Great in Washington Jan. 9, and also that it was he who sent the trunk containing an infernal machine to the steamship Umbria at New York in May, 1903.

The prisoner, whose right name is not known, made these admissions in the office of Capt. Donaghy after he had been identified by persons brought here from New York and Washington for that purpose. He gave no reasons for the attempted outrages except that "there are too many foreign affairs in this country."

"Patriotic Fanatic."
After having Rosseau under fire all afternoon the police classed him as an "American patriotic fanatic." The prisoner gave no information voluntarily to the police, he admitting only those things which the police had fastened on him. Both the Washington and New York authorities want the man, and it is probable that he will be turned over to the police of the latter city.

The apprehension of Rosseau was due to the disappearance of Owen Kelly, a wealthy Irish-American, who is prominent in Irish-American societies in this country. Kelly disappeared on Oct. 23, and from time to time the newspapers, particularly of the East, have published articles on the mysterious disappearance. These, the police believe, undoubtedly attracted Rosseau's attention.

Offers to Find Missing Man.
Jan. 11 he called on Patrick Kelly, the brother of the missing man, and offered to take him to his brother in New York for $500. He said he and Owen Kelly belonged to secret societies that were organized for the purpose of blowing up British ships in American ports. The valise he carried, he said, contained explosives. Patrick Kelly notified the police and Rosseau was taken into custody. The valise contained an infernal machine.

GIFTS OF ONE RICH MAN MAKE SMALL TOWN POOR

Present of $1,000,000 School and $500,000 Library Embarrass Methuen, Mass.

Methuen, Mass., Jan. 16.—Edward F. Searies, once a poor carpenter, but now the widower of Mrs. Mark Hopkins, and who says he has at least $800,000,000, has embarrassed this little town with a gift of $1,000,000 for a high school building, the finest in the country, although there are only eighty-five pupils.

As each new building he gives to the town requires support, taxation is high and the villagers have to scratch to raise money. But they don't dare to affront Searies, so they take expensive and expensive entailing gifts without an audible murmur. The public library, which cost $500,000, and burns more coal than the rest of the town put together, is a specimen of the embarrassment of riches.

Searies cannot spend his money, as it accumulates too fast. He lives alone with servants in a castle, which is expected to be left to the town as a hospital when he dies. Then, as one resident says:

"We shall be so rich that we shall be poverty stricken to keep up appearances. Searies means well, but does not seem to understand the situation. He is the same chap to-day that he was when, as a poor carpenter and decorator, Mrs. Hopkins became infatuated with him, and led him to the altar. His gifts embarrass us, but we must take them."

of the clock" arrangement variety, but no explosives.

About the machine was wrapped a Washington newspaper. This gave the police the clue that he might know something of the explosion at the statue of Frederick the Great, and his picture was taken and sent to both the Washington and New York authorities.

Sends Note of Warning.

He said that he made part of the Umbria infernal machine in Chicago and then took it to New York in a trunk. The trunk, he said, was not strong enough, so he purchased one better suited for the machine. In New York he obtained a room at Mrs. Curry's place and there finished the work of making the machine. He admitted writing the note to Police Commissioner Green, which read:

"The Mafia greets you and wishes you well. The society has declared war against England and has ordered the destruction of ever steamer flying the British flag that sails out of New York. The society has undertaken to clear New York harbor of British ships, and it will succeed."

It was this note of warning which led to finding of the trunk before it was placed on the steamship. Rosseau also admitted obtaining the dynamite found in the trunk on the strength of the name of a contractor.

Born in United States.

Having learned all they could regarding his attempts on the Umbria and the statue, the police officials turned their attention to learning something of the antecedents of the man. He said he was born in America and that he was a farmer. Where he was born and where his home is he would not say.

He admitted that his name was not "Gessley Rosseau." He said he had read much and that he was a student of social economy. He took the name of "Gessley Rosseau" because two of his ideals had those names—Albrecht Gessler, the Swiss dictator, who, tradition says, was killed by William Tell in 1307; and Jean Jacques Rosseau, the French philosopher and writer, who died in 1778.

WOULD GRAB THE BEST OF LAND

GUY MITCHELL WARNS THE PUBLIC OF CONSEQUENCES.

TELLS WHAT WILL HAPPEN

Describes the Kinkaid Land Law and What it Means to Western Nebraska.

A wholesale raid is in evidence at Washington designed upon the remaining western public lands. Already this session two bills have been introduced by Representatives Martin and Brooks allowing a man to take up a square mile of government land in South Dakota and in Colorado respectively and permitting those who may have already made a 160-acre homestead entry to make an additional entry of 480 acres.

The claim has been persistently made by western land men that a man can not make a home and living on 160 acres anywhere in the west, and so this square-mile-homestead plan is brought forward as a means of getting the public domain into private ownership as rapidly as possible. The question is, even assuming that 640 acres is not too large a farm for the government to give a citizen, to whom will this land go?

The bills above mentioned are modeled after the Kinkaid law, which applies to 640 acre unit to western Nebraska and was slipped through congress at the tail end of last session. Yet it was not thirty days before it was charged that under this law the Nebraska cattlemen had secured about all they wanted in Nebraska. The Kinkaid law and the above bills provide that where a man has a 160-acre entry, or a mere filing on 160 acres, he shall have the preference right to enter an adjoining 480 acres, and in Nebraska the cattlemen are alleged to have "entered" through their employees, their choice of the lands, so that as soon as the law passed, they simply had to apply in each case for the contiguous 480 acres. It takes but a few such entries—they can be made half a mile wide and two miles long—to control a vast territory of country.

It was foreseen that similar bills to the Kinkaid Nebraska law would be immediately introduced at this session and it is understood that a number more such measures will follow to include other states. If congress is to act further in this matter the issue must be met squarely and frankly, the present homestead law overturned and a square mile made the homestead unit for the entire country, instead of the present 160 acres.

Safeguards Only in Name.

Apparent safeguards are provided in these bills, authorizing the secretary of the interior to immediately withdraw any such lands as he may deem fit for irrigation under the national irrigation law. Some such lands have, of course, been withdrawn, and they have been and are constantly being withdrawn, under the irrigation law itself, from speculative entry by use of the desert land law and the commutation clause of the homestead law. These withdrawals are being made from time to time but only after investigation and survey to determine which may be irrigable lands. Active as the geological survey has been in its western investigations, it is more criminal than absurd to assume that the government is in possession of sufficient accurate information regarding the billion or so acres composing the entire western half of the United States which would enable it to intelligently withdraw what may later prove to be irrigable lands. With the utmost activity and the most energetic surveys it must be ten if not fifteen years before the government can possibly know what are all its irrigable lands.

In the meantime, under the proposed plan every acre will have been taken up in these 640 acre tracts, and as provided in the Brooks' bill for Colorado, commuted, after the force of a fourteen months' residence has been gone through with, and then transferred to syndicates or corporations in single tracts as large and monopolistic as desired.

This entry on the public domain of 640 acre homesteads with the privilege of commuting is even a more bold faced fraud than was the old desert law with its 640 acre provision, which later was with a great flourish of reform trumpets, cut down to 320 acres. To legally comply with the commutation clause, all that is necessary is for a stock herder, for instance, for file on a homestead in the fall, say October. He need not visit his claim for six months. Then in March he can put up a 315 shack and purport to live in it during the following eight months, while he is herding his stock in the neighborhood, sleeping in it once a month or less. At the end of eight months he can prove up and get his title to the land from the government and immediately transfer it to his employer, receiving probably as a bonus $50 for the use of this land privilege. He has fully complied with the law, and his position can not be legally attacked.

The Blight of Western Nebraska. As applied to even 160 acres, the commutation clause has been an outrage. Utilizing it for 640 acre filings would more than quadruple its evil for it would cast off practically all restraint from those interests which are every day rapidly acquiring enormous land holdings, running up into the hundreds of thousands of acres. Nebraska was foolish enough to blight the future of the western half of the state by allowing the passage of the Kinkaid law. Statesmen representing interests which control the policies of other western states are apparently desirous of making this plan applicable to their states. The country should rigidly confine this plan to Nebraska.

There is great danger to the west and to the nation in this Nebraska law and its proposed application to various other states, one at a time, as quickly and expeditiously as possible. Congress is apparently willing to legislate for this state and that, senatorial and congressional courtesy playing an important part, and allow such local laws to pass, where a general law applying to the entire west would not be considered. The move is an insidious one and is a shrewd game on the part of the big land men to get piecemeal legislation which they realize they can not secure as a whole. Land dealers and speculators are warmly enthusiastic in their praise of the Nebraska law. It will be more interesting to note how the real prosperity of the state is affected in the next two or three years, how many homes will be built under the Kinkaid law, how much of the population of the section affected will be increased and how much real farming will be done.

A NOTED WOMAN DIED SATURDAY

Tribute Paid Mrs. Peter Allen—A Remarkable Christian Character.

In the passing away of Mrs. Peter Allen ends the earthly career of one of the noble women of Rock county. For thirteen years she was the benefactress of our county asylum and poorhouse. During the fifties the writer was invited by the late Mr. Russell Cheney of Emerald Grove, who was styled "the sweet singer of Israel," to visit the county house, then in Johnstown, where he held religious services, which was really a service of song more than instruction. This he continued until his life's work was done. A short time previous he sent for the writer and wanted him to continue the work in which he had found such pleasure. Not being qualified in any manner to follow one with such rare gifts, he did not comply, but did go to Johnstown later with others, usually with Mr. George Held, now of Minneapolis, or Mr. James Cleland of our city, where we had a Sunday school rally and on our return would pay a visit to the asylum. It was then the writer became acquainted with Mrs. Allen, who was the honored matron. Mrs. Allen was slender and petite in form, but could control an innage by her wonderful magnetic power. More than once she has quieted a disturbance by putting her arm around and kissing her. Her adaptability to the situation was marvelous. A Miss Burdick was in a morbid condition. Mrs. Allen discovered she had a taste for painting, so provided her with needed supplies as a result, the writer received from her a Multi-Color picture with over 200 flowers, each numbered to correspond with chart giving the botanical names, also the ordinary ones. Another was the case of a patient—Roxey Ramsey—who persisted in running away. Mrs. Allen noticed every time Roxey passed through a room where was a musical instrument she would fly to it and begin to play, quite contrary to the rules. On the principle that a hair of a dog would cure the bite, she told Roxey she had been appointed musical director of the institution and it would be necessary for her to practice all the time. Music won and now she is an industrious patient contributing to the needs of others.

One more case: Mrs. Connors, "the Queen," was happy making lace. She was assisted with material, also a case for the exhibition and sale of her laces, which she is making still. About this time Mrs. Little was superintendent of the institute for the blind. Often the names of the two were compared as being especially qualified for their separate work. Mrs. Pickett has exceeded all others in length of service, having been matron nineteen years. Those who have the pleasure of her acquaintance know that the wards committed to her would be most tenderly cared for. The present matron, Mrs. Killam, and daughter, Miss Myrtle, have the esteem and confidence of the many under their care. The number in the hospital is 104, poor department 76. The funeral of Mrs. Allen will be held in Evansville, Tuesday afternoon, where she will be laid by the side of her late husband, Peter Allen. J. T. WRIGHT.

FIGHT TO BEGIN AT THE CAPITAL

UNITED STATES SENATORSHIP IS NOT SETTLED OVER NIGHT.

WILL VOTE FOR LA FOLLETTE

Dane County Members Decide To Cast Their Ballots for The Governor.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Jan. 16.—The legislators are returning to Madison today and from now until the election of United States senator is determined the contest will be the center-stage feature of the legislative play. Some new elements of the campaign have developed, among them the spreading of the intelligence by administration supporters that admirers of Governor La Follette will vote for him even though he make no announcement of his candidacy, also the apparent defection of Isaac Stephenson from the administration camp and the reports that Senator Charles "sawed much wood" with the members last week.

The Dane county members of the legislature—Senator A. M. Stondahl, Assemblymen Warner, Huber and Donald—will vote for Governor La Follette from the start, it is said, and it is expected that these will not be alone as the nucleus of the governor's strength. The nearest to an announcement of La Follette's candidacy for the senate is the suggestion of some of his close friends that he would be a "chump" to make an announcement forbidding followers to support him and that "there is no law against it" if any members of the legislature see fit to cast their ballots for him. Opponents of the La Follette organization declare with emphasis that he is surely planning to be elected senator and that the favor of the Dane county members for him is unquestionably the result of the governor's confidential suggestion to them. The fact that he practically named each of the Dane county members gives more color to this statement.

Sounded Chances It is believed here that the "fatigue" announced by Mr. Stephenson for the continuous contribution invitations extended to him from the administration side means that he has sounded the administration as to his chances in the senatorial race and the possibility and willingness of the organization to unite upon him as its candidate, and that he has had it intimated to him that while there is nothing to prevent his becoming a candidate and while he deserves the election for his service in the cause, that there are elements in the situation which make it impracticable for the organization to attempt to unite upon him. These elements are doubtless the strong candidacies of Congressmen Esch and Cooper and the persistence of their friends in maintaining that they are in the race to win and not as stalking horses. Mr. Esch is backed by practically every member from his district and this delegation includes some of the strongest La Follette members. Mr. Esch, however, cannot be considered in high favor in the administration council as a senatorial candidate. Congressman Cooper is more in favor. The first thing sought by the administration, of course, is the defeat of Senator Charles. He was on the ground last week and the throng that went to his headquarters included not a few administration members, to all of whom the senator made himself agreeable. It is whispered that Senator Charles has "annexed" a number of administration members, and although this cannot be known until the voting commences, there is some reason to believe it is true.

Does Not Worry

These reports, however, are not causing worry in the executive office. The ideal sought for in an administration senator is one who can "go to Washington and scrap with Senator Spooner for federal patronage." The pernicious activity of federal officials has been the greatest obstacle in the administration path. Federal patronage, it is said, has been the greatest supply of munitions of warfare in the stalwart magazine and a division of this must be assured, say administration leaders. It is doubted whether Congressman Esch cares for "scrap" much with Senator Spooner. It is doubted whether Congressman Cooper could do so effectively were he so disposed. It is believed that Judge Webb and Mr. Stephenson are to do it, but "send Bob to the senate," say his admirers, "and we'll see where Senator Spooner gives up at least half the appointments." This is the senatorial situation at its alarming and it is doubtful whether any great change will take place several days. Another thing is being commented upon—the report that Governor La Follette is reluctant to leave the executive office in charge of Lieutenant Governor Davidson.

Some Doubt

There is no doubt that Mr. Davidson would follow out the lines of conduct mapped by the present governor, with all the ability the Soldiers Grove man possesses, but it is feared that the certain attempt of Mr. Davidson to be elected as governor next time would cause trouble. It is acknowledged by administration people that "Jim" is a lucky child in politics; that he was chosen treasurer because he got on the La Follette wagon at the proper time, was a Norwegian of many friends and few enemies and without offensive qualities; at a time when it was good politics to represent his district on the state ticket with a Norwegian. He served two terms as treasurer, is now in his second term as lieutenant governor and should La Follette wrap the mantle upon him would doubtless seek a term or two as governor through election. This would doubtless cause trouble, as it is already said that "Jim" has had more than enough. While this is commented upon freely it possibly is of no significance.

Many Bills

Tuesday morning the flood of bills will commence to pour in, but no legislation of any importance of volume will be enacted until the decks are cleared of the senatorial contest.

The clerical and sergeant-at-arms force of the assembly was completed by Chief Clerk Marsh and Sergeant-at-Arms Strevler Saturday evening. The principal appointments are as follows:

CLERICAL FORCE
Journal clerk—Charles E. Leight, New Lisbon.
Bookkeeper—C. E. Schafer, Madison.
General clerks—Ralph E. Smith, Merrill, and C. E. Nagler, St. Croix.
Enrolling clerk—A. W. Potts, Sheboygan.
Engrossing clerk—J. E. Noyes, Greenwood.

Clerk of committee on engrossed bills—L. R. Nash, Wild Rose.
Clerk of judiciary committee—H. A. Bares, Jackson.

SERGEANT-AT-ARMS FORCE
First assistant—C. H. Collins, Verona county.
Second assistant—Walter Egan, Superior.

Postmaster—Carson Smith, Milwaukee.
Custodian of documents room—W. J. Pollock, Lancaster.
Several of these are the same as held the positions two years ago. The committees of the assembly will not be announced until Tuesday.

HOUSEKEEPERS TO HAVE CONFERENCE

Wives and Daughters of Farmers Attending Short Agricultural Course at Madison.

The College of Agriculture will offer again this year the special ten days' Farmers' Course which proved so popular last year, the meetings to extend from February 11-24. The course is open to all persons over twenty-five years of age and no fees or charges are made by the university for instruction, as the course is intended for farmers who cannot take advantage of the longer courses in agriculture. Last year when the course was given for the first time, there were 175 farmers in attendance from 42 counties of the state. This year several new features are to be added to strengthen the course materially, and the work will include instruction in improved method of raising live stock, and of cultivating new varieties of corn, oats, and other grains, with especial attention to the judging of seed corn.

In connection with this Farmers' Course the department of Household Economics of the university, under the direction of Prof. Caroline L. Hunt, will hold a special ten days' housekeepers' conference for the wives and daughters of those attending the Farmers' Course. The purpose of this housekeepers' conference is to furnish instruction and demonstrations, and encourage discussion in subjects of interest connected with housekeeping. The work will include a daily lecture and demonstration of food and cooking, and lectures on household management, house furnishings, health and care of children, and gardening.

An illustrated circular now in press giving detailed information concerning both courses, and calling attention to the fact that rooms and board can be obtained at reasonable prices, and that reduced railroad fares have been secured, will be sent to those interested, by Dean Henry of the College of Agriculture, who is in charge of the course.

A nine-pound baby daughter has arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stohn.

PUTTING IT STRONG.

But Doesn't It Look Reasonable? This may read as though we were putting it a little strong, because it is generally thought by the majority of people that Dyspepsia in its chronic form is incurable or practically so. But we have long since shown that Dyspepsia is curable, not is it such a difficult matter as at first appears.

The trouble with dyspeptics is that they are continually dieting, starving themselves or going to the opposite extreme or else deluging the already over-burdened stomach with "bitters" after "dinner pills," etc., which invariably increases the difficulty even if in some cases they do give a slight temporary relief. Such treatment of the stomach simply makes matters worse. What the stomach wants is rest. Now how can the stomach become rested, re-energized and at the same time the body nourished and sustained?

This is a great secret and this is also the secret of the uniform success of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. This is a comparatively new remedy but its success and popularity leave no doubt as to its merit. The tablets will digest the food anyway, regardless of condition of stomach. The sufferer from Dyspepsia, according to directions, is to eat an abundance of good, wholesome food and use the tablets before and after each meal and the result will be that the food will be digested no matter how bad your Dyspepsia may be, because, as before stated, the tablets will digest the food even if the stomach is wholly inactive. To illustrate our meaning plainly, if you take 1,500 grains of meat, eggs or ordinary food and place it in a temperature of 98 degrees, and put with it one of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets it will digest the meat or eggs almost as perfectly as if the meat was enclosed within the stomach.

The stomach may be ever so weak yet these tablets will perform the work of digestion and the body and brain will be properly nourished and at the same time a radical, lasting cure of Dyspepsia will be made because the much abused stomach will be given to some extent, a much needed rest. Your druggist will tell you that of all the many remedies advertised to cure dyspepsia none of them have given so complete and general satisfaction as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and not least in importance in these hard times is the fact that they are also the cheapest, and give the most good for the least money.

MORNING ADDRESS OF REV. TIPPETT

"BUT LOVE YE YOUR ENEMIES," WAS TEXT.

THE TOPIC, "NEVER DESPAIR"

What Rev. Tippet Said in Brief—The Two Versions of One Text.

In his sermon Sunday morning, Rev. Tippet mentioned the subject of a revival in Janesville that has been mooted by other preachers in their discourses to the congregations, and it is possible that such a thing may come in Janesville. Rev. Tippet's text was the thirty-fifth verse of the sixth chapter of Luke—"But love your enemies, and do good, and lend, hoping for nothing again." The subject of Rev. Tippet's sermon was "Never Despair," and in brief he said: In the type of people whom Christ met when on earth He found two very popular and widely disseminated fallacies. One was that He Himself was indulging in certain teachings, the trend of which was toward the subversion of the Mosaic law. This He answered by the statement that no man can or will do that because when law is reduced to its last analysis it simply means love with the veil on its face and no good man can strike at love. The second fallacy was to this effect: even the professors of religion in the day of Jesus were failing in the nature and scope and mission of law. To this Christ answered no, they hurt the law in their homes and in their lives; they have robbed it of its beauty, integrity and inwardness; they keep the law under illusions, traditions, gain sayings, fallacies and faults.

Love for Hate Two opinions that seem to be diverse tend to converge by virtue of a common principle. Love and hate may have a common principle. The Pharisees said: If the people do evil to us we indulge in evil to them. This they did in self-defense. The words of Lamech's song in Genesis IV are after this fashion, the old poison of materialism having managed to ferment in the history and life of the world from one age to another. But Jesus says we should do good for evil. Have we of the twentieth century much improved upon the code of the Pharisees, though we may profess to be ahead of them? The Pharisees loved those who loved them, loved those who were of them and were kind to those who were kind to them. Self-defense is love of self, doing good to those who do good to you is love of self. Love and hate have fought their ways and described their little orbit, and yet they are but one common principle of selfishness through and through. Christ came to ask the Pharisees to be like God for the very essence of religion's imitation. God is good to both the wicked and the just and you are not a Christian until you have given back good for evil, blessing for cursing, and prayer for persecution. There is much said about revivals.

There should be a revival of an ethical character, taking selfishness out of our hearts and making us more God-like in our aims, intentions and practices. Jesus says, "Love your enemies and do good to them which hate you." There is that painful little precept, "Lend." One lends, but does not expect anything in return. That is not the teaching of Jesus Christ; it is too negative; it is too unsatisfying; it is too much along the course of worldly ethics and if one look at a revised version of the Bible one will see a widely different translation: "Love your enemies and do them good, and lend, never despairing." The optimistic spirit advocated by Christ is the only one fit for the direct discharge of duty to God and man. When one thinks he would rather die than live he cannot discharge the duties of life. He wants a little optimism. People who are in sorrow do not want argument; they want sympathy. Those in trouble do not want philosophy; they want the voice of Jesus, kind and true. A hungry man does not want preaching; a thirsty man does not want sermons. When the prophet Elijah was of low soul and dejected he cast himself down under a juniper tree and said, "God Lord, it is enough." The angel of the Lord appeared, and said, "Arise and eat, for thou art not alone. God is with thee. Lift up thy soul, never despair." That is the divine work. That is the divine prophecy. One of the greatest of mysteries is how Jesus Christ could be an optimist. The testimony of Jesus is the spirit of love; the ring of prophecy is optimistic. Christ went out seventy men called apostles and these men, when they came back, came back with joy. Many an old man and old Christian has said, "There is no hope of salvation for me," and the whole world looks in the direction of that person's ruin and moral chaos and wild despair. They consider him lost. But in the midst of the darkness and blackness Jesus appears coming to seek and to save that which the world casts out.

Lending There is a greater tendency to quote Shakespeare than the Bible in reference to lending. "Neither a borrower nor a lender be, for the lender loses both his money and his friends. And borrowing dulls the edge of husbandry." The Scripture says: "I have been young and now I am old, yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread." "He is ever merciful that lendeth." The man who never lends is the man who never gives. The negatively soul and the selfish creature cannot get above the weight of his money; he never blessed of God. Loans have been repaid, though many may say what he will. There are two ways in which these loans are repaid. The first of these is by the fact that you, in improving yourself, grow even unconsciously, in the likeness of God. Every effort toward the salvation of a brother is an effort to cause self to die out in the love of one's kind. Despairing souls are a danger in the ranks of Christian followers; but whatever be the field of duty or task sphere of usefulness to which the Master calls, be true and optimistic. Give; and remember that over and above all this strange entanglement called life there resides One whose Son has died that you might live, whose Son was crucified that you might conquer. Who learned Himself the secret of all power, of all influence, and of all good; I mean not for the moment, but living for all time: Who came Himself to understand that only by the crucifixion of self is the way of universal victory. When you have given yourselves wholly over to religion's way and religious duties, say in your souls: I shall never despair, for God is with me.

LET WELL ENOUGH ALONE.

The spasm of reform, which is now annoying the country, possesses elements of danger and it remains to be seen whether the disease becomes violent and beyond control. Congress is urged to take up the tariff, with a view to revision as well as to adopt measures looking to government control of railroad rates, while the legislatures of two or three states, are expected to take radical action on various questions of public interest.

So far as the tariff is concerned there should be a law prohibiting any change in schedules for 10 years. This constant discussion of the tariff does more to demoralize business, than the discussion of all other public questions. The nation was never more prosperous than it is today. Every industry has been stimulated to activity, and many of them owe their existence to wise protective measures.

More than this, American labor shares the full benefits, and the people of no other country are so highly favored today. Employment and good wages are largely due to protection. The tariff on some few articles may be too high, but no one suffers particularly on this account. Better to put up with some inconveniences than to disturb a system which is contributing so largely to the prosperity of the country.

So far as government control of freight rates is concerned, this is the entering wedge for government ownership, and the first step towards socialism. The railroad companies are not pirates, and the men who handle the business of these corporations for the people who own them are honest men. They attempt to meet competition and make money for the interests they represent. The much discussed favored shipper is the man who enjoys a commodity rate, a rate which benefits the town where it applies, infinitely more than it benefits the individual shipper. The paper industry of Wisconsin as well as the lumber industry of the state is made possible because of this class of rates. This means that the state of Wisconsin owes its industrial prosperity to the friendly relations which exist between the railroads and shippers.

What is true of Wisconsin is true of many other localities, and Congress will do well to go slow before disturbing these relations. The state of Wisconsin is menaced with legislation nearer home which is liable to be detrimental to its interests. A reform administration is in control and radical changes may be expected. The argument that the state is prosperous and satisfied with conditions, has no weight with these reformers. The fact that the manufacturers are opposed to radical changes, cuts no figure. The one man in control is supposed to possess more wisdom than all other influences combined, and his word is law. It is a new and strange condition for Wisconsin, and time will be required to redeem the state from this infatuation.

EXIT MAGNA CHARTA. Thus passes away the glory of the world! Jeffery, we are told, once spoke disrespectfully of the Equator. Lucrateria Borgia probably did not know the use of poison. There are no canals in Mars. The Gulf Stream has no influence upon European climate. William Tell was not an archer, but a half-brother. Et cetera. Up the Beanstalk they all go with Jack, and pull the stalk up after them. Latest thus to go—we dare not venture to hope it will be the last—Magna Charta. We had supposed that if anything connected with this mundane sphere was secure, that was. Is not the foundation, the paradigm, the charter, and what not, of English freedom and since Runnymede antedates Bunker Hill—of American freedom? Certainly it has been called so many times, by such respectable authorities as Macaulay and Hallam and Green, and has been so regarded by the world at large. Yet now we are assured by no less an authority than Professor Edward Jenks of Liverpool, that it is no such thing. In brief, Magna Charta is a fraud. It did not enlarge and assure the liberties of England, but rather restricted them. It was a reactionary instead of a progressive step, and it has for all these years been enjoying an entirely erroneous and unmerited reputation, all because of a wretched blunder or misapprehension on the part of Sir Edward Coke! It may be so. Who are we, that we should presume to judge such matters? But we are reminded of the saying of a very prince of philosophers, who, after an evening's sentence upon the eternal verities, austere declared that all the truths of the universe were resolvable, in their ultimate analysis, into one single, solitary, fundamental truth, and—he had forgotten what that was! We propose to watch solicitously the further flight of our cherished fancies—the Declaration of Independence, the law of gravity, the aurora borealis, and what not—and when they are all gone save some single, final one, we are going to nail that fast, with wire nails, and clinch the nails!

All is astir at Madison just now and before long some of the assembly men will look like the parrot, who asked "Where in h— were you when the cyclone struck us?"

Marquette Eagle-Star: America has always shown the world that its citizens can not only heap up dollars for themselves, but that they also provide for the future of their dependents to a degree hitherto undreamed of and unknown. No man in this country can be called poor who owns a life insurance policy; no man is wholly rich who does not possess one.

Milwaukee Sentinel: At the same time Mr. Stephenson may find consolation in the fact that the contributions made by him to the causes of "reform" were inconsiderable when compared with the cost of the same cause to the people of the state who have been paying the salaries of the army of strikers and heelers.

Waupaca Post: Louise Michel, the French woman who has been for many years the head of the communist and anarchist societies in Europe, died last week. Had her energy been displayed in a more noble cause, the world would have called her one of its great women.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: In the southwest corner of Missouri, distant nine hours from St. Louis, is the Joplin zinc and lead mining district, which for the last calendar year produced ores valued at $11,695,873. In ten years the value of the output has increased threefold. Last week zinc ore sold for as high as $35 a ton. Last year the price was $38. A few days ago a 40-acre tract of good mining land was sold for $40,000, and a ten-acre lease for $10,000. There are only two states that produce as much from gold mines as Missouri from its zinc and lead mines.

Chicago Chronicle: When a distinguished Englishman a few weeks ago proposed that we reduce our national hymn and leave out any unpleasant references to England the proposition was hardly necessary, for until attention was called to the stanza in question, few Americans knew of its existence. The unknown portion had not commended itself to the popular heart and was quietly taking care of itself in oblivion until it was denounced. Everybody then turned to the poem and to the forgotten stanza which was obnoxious to the British. Now another of our poems is found to be anti-British in sentiment—Longfellow's "Evangeline." The Canadians have prohibited the reading of it in the public schools, although James Russell Lowell once said that even Theocritus, with his exquisite sense for poetry, would scarce change a line in his tender, virginal pastoral so quiet and chaste in its singular beauty. The British seem to be unduly sensitive of late over some pages of their history.

ABOUT THE HONEYMOON.

Some London papers have been discussing the subject of honeymoons and have decided that a bride ceases to be a "bride" and becomes a "wife" after six weeks of matrimony. A woman may know that she has ceased to be a bride only:

When she begins to nag.
When he comes in late for dinner.
When she discovers that she is jealous.
When he begins to eat out to his club.
When he grows economical with his fishes.
When he becomes sarcastic about the food.
When he begins to eulogize his mother.
The first time her husband criticizes her frocks.
When he tells her how pretty some other woman looks.
When she does not mind coming to breakfast in curl papers.

When she begins to hunt up her old friends and enjoy calling on them.

When she begins to remember the virtues of the man she didn't marry.

An Animal Story For Little Folks THE BEAR WHO LOVED THE MAID

Way up in the frozen country near the north pole there lived a large polar bear. He was a handsome fellow of enormous size, with a silky white coat of great beauty, of which he was very proud. He was the beau of all the lady polars in the district where he lived and would have been a "lion" if he had not already been a bear.

Near by there came to live a company of miners who were after gold. One of those miners had a very lovely daughter, and as soon as Mr. Polar Bear saw her he fell desperately in love with her and imagined that, of course, as all the ladies of his own set had loved him, she ought to return his love. But she

"We won't go home till mornin'" refused him, and he, growing very savage, determined to have her if he had to carry her off inside.

"Father," she said one day, "you must kill that bear. He's getting too familiar."

"All right, daughter; never fear. I'll fix him."

The hours went by, and father did not return. Calling one of the men, she started from the house across the ice to find him. Just as they reached the shore a strange sight met their eyes. There came Mr. Polar, rigged out with father's hat and coat, smoking father's pipe upside down, with father's gun trailing on behind, and with a strange look about his stomach as though father might have been resting on the inside.

"We won't go home till mornin'" sang the bear as he staggered along. "Ah, my love, I shall soon unfold thee in these loving arms," he cried as he saw the girl on the shore.

"Help, help!" she cried. "Who will save me?"

"Madam, leaving him to me," said a miner, who, taking his ax, cut a large hole in the ice.

Mr. Bear, who had tasted too much from father's flask before swallowing father, did not see it.

"Crack! Swish! Down he went. As he passed under the miner hit him a blow with the ax. "Some animals don't know when they're well off," he said dryly.—Atlanta Constitution.

BROKE IN WINDOW AND STOLE ARMS

FIVE REVOLVERS TAKEN FROM CROSSMAN STORE SATURDAY.

LOOKS LIKE WORK OF BOYS

Daring and Successful Attempt on North Main Street, Attributed to "The Gang."

Some time after eleven o'clock Saturday night a bold thief broke in a heavy window pane in the store front of G. A. Crossman's second-hand establishment at 333 North Main St. and helped himself to five revolvers of various patterns valued at about $20. In the booty were a thirty-eight hammerless, manufactured by the Boston Arms Co., a five shot 32-calibre Harrington & Richardson, center-fire, and three other 32-calibre weapons.

Discovered Yesterday

Six of these revolvers were left in the show-window along with a number of rifles and shot-guns, powder horns, and other hunting accoutrements. But none of the revolvers were taken. And five of the revolvers were missing. Evidence of the theft attracted the attention of Officer Benke early yesterday morning and he at once informed the owner of the establishment. It was found on examination of the premises that an effort had at first been made to remove the putty from the glass in the doorway but this plan had later been abandoned and a large hole had been broken in the pane nearest the weapons either by a sharp blow of the hand or with a stone or club. The broken glass was thrown a distance of several yards by the impact.

Attributed to Boys

G. A. Crossman believes that the job was done by one or more of the gang of bad boys which he says has infested the second ward for years. No evidence of any kind to offer a clue to the guilty party or parties has been found. "Hank" Warner, a seventeen-year-old boy, who in company with Louis Funk and another lad were seen on North Main street at two o'clock Sunday morning, was arrested on suspicion and kept in the lock-up yesterday. He was released this morning, the explanation of his presence there at that hour being satisfactory and the officers being convinced that neither he nor his companions had anything to do with the crime.

WHEELLOCK & PARTY JOURNEY SOUTH

Occupants of the Stone House on River Street—Leave for Warner.

Climax—Borrow Horse.

In behalf of August Strampe, the owner, Constable Bogardus last Friday served notice on Messrs. Wheellock and Perry, Alonzo Kinney's former wife, et al, to vacate the stone house on North River street recently referred to in these columns as a place whose reputation had accumulated more or less tarnish recently on account of its occupants. So Wheellock went to the barn Saturday morning and hitched to his covered gypsy wagon a horse which one Lyons of Otter Creek had left with him to sell to a customer which said Wheellock claimed to have found, and early in the day all the household goods were packed into the prairie schooner and the journey to fresher fields began. Besides the three mentioned there was a young girl and a woman supposed to be Wheellock's sister aboard. The one horse was hitched on one side of the pole and in fact the entire outfit presented a picturesque appearance as it moved down Main street to the south. Beloit was reached that day and the last report of the caravan came from Rockton yesterday. It was stated there that the destination of the party was Rockford. In the meantime Mr. Lyons of Otter Creek had gotten wind of the heira and hurried to Janesville to get his horse and harness to the money equivalent thereof. He arrived on the scene yesterday and complained bitterly to the police. As the matter had the aspect of a simple breach of trust and as the faithless Wheellock was already beyond the state line, much reassurance and encouragement as to the ultimate recovery of his property could not be offered Mr. Lyons.

CURRENT NEWS NOTES.

Got Into River: Thomas Cassidy, employed by the Electric Light Co., went through the ice just below the Milwaukee street bridge yesterday morning. As he was near the shore he found bottom without total immersion and got out of his predicament without calling for aid. He suffered no serious effects.

Had a Bad Fall: While crossing Milwaukee street this morning Constable A. K. Cutts slipped and fell on the icy pavement. He was lucky enough to escape with a few bruises.

Sleigh Tipped Over: A cutter in which Art Granger and Miss Josephine Farnsworth were riding tipped over on Milwaukee street near the bridge this morning and both occupants were thrown to the pavement. Mr. Granger held onto the lines until the horse was stopped and was dragged several yards. No injuries were sustained.

Patsy Griffin Again: On the charge of being a common drunk Patsy Griffin was this morning sentenced to spend five days in the county jail and pay a fine of $5 or serve fifteen additional days.

John Winans' Condition: John Winans had a very bad spell Saturday evening but was a trifle better yesterday. Dr. Q. O. Sutherland reported that his condition was about the same today.

Trouble at the Rink: Will Casey, a young man about eighteen years old, caused some disturbance at the rink Saturday night and on complaint of P. A. Taylor, Officer Fanning showed him the door. The boy did not leave in an orderly manner and dodged as the officer struck at him with his cane, receiving the blow across the face. No arrest was made.

FOUR BIRDS AND WIN FOUR PRIZES

Remarkable Record of McVicar and Pierson at Big Milwaukee Show.

At the recent exhibition of the Wisconsin Poultry Fanciers' association, which closed in Milwaukee last Saturday night, Janesville was represented by four entries and secured three first prizes and one third. There were two thousand entries and the distinction of securing prizes in such a large competition speaks very well for the Janesville birds. William McVicar had a cockerel and a pullet entered in the Black Langshans and secured two first prizes and Roy Pierson had a cockerel and pullet entered in the single comb Black Minorcas and took a first with the cockerel and a third with the pullet. This is the biggest show ever held in Wisconsin.

NEARLY SCALPED IN COASTING ACCIDENT

Eight-Year Old Leo Brummond Struck a Cutter Crossing the Walk on Center Avenue Hill.

While coasting on Radolph's hill on Center avenue Saturday afternoon the hand sled which eight-year-old Leo Brummond was riding on struck a cutter which was crossing the sidewalk and the boy's head struck some sharp projection which cut open a triangular portion of his scalp measuring nearly three inches on the longest side. Drs. Woods and Farnsworth attended the patient and dressed his injuries. He is now resting comfortably at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brummond, 16 Armour street, and it is not thought that any permanent injuries will result.

Unpractical Scientist.

"Why is it that a scientist seldom becomes rich?" "A scientist," said the practical man, "becomes too much accustomed to dealing with large quantities. If he makes a calculation that is only a few million years or a few million miles out of the way he doesn't complain. And he can always figure that he is within a few million dollars of being rich."—Washington Star.

Youngster Too Imaginative.

A London clergyman held a children's Bible class recently and afterward talked to his young friends about the terrible suffering of the poor in cold weather. "What is that place?" he asked one of the boys, "where many old people have to go for warmth, although they try to keep away from it?" The lad, without a moment's hesitation, said, "Hell."

The clergyman, however, had meant the workhouse.

The floor committee will consist of Jesse Earle, Sidney Thomas, Walter Little, and G. Barlow. Kellogg & Co.'s orchestra of La Prairie will play and the whole evening will be devoted to dancing.

OBITUARY.

Adelia H. Murdock. After a long and painful illness, Mrs. Adelia H. Murdock passed away Sunday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Thomas S. Nolan, with whom she resided. For eleven weeks she was confined to her bed, until death brought succor from the suffering patiently and hopefully borne. Mrs. Murdock was born in Florence, Cayuga county, New York, June 19, 1829. She came to Janesville in 1846 with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Hoyt. They settled upon a farm in the town of Rock. She was married to Mr. Edwin D. Murdock November 6, 1853. At the time of his death, which occurred twenty-one years ago, he was a prominent commission merchant in our city and an honored member of the board of aldermen. The father of Mrs. Murdock, Deacon Charles Hoyt, was one of the founders of the Baptist church in our city. Of her brothers and sisters three survive—Mrs. Catherine E. Bowen, Union Springs, N. Y.; Mr. Charles L. Hoyt, Des Moines, Iowa; and Mr. Frank J. Hoyt, Sac City, Iowa. She was a member of the Baptist church. For fifty-six years her name has been on its roll. Her fidelity to duty and the kindness of her spirit were for her through her long residence here the honor and affection of all who knew her. Four children cherish her memory and mourn her death—Mrs. Myron B. Clark of Rock Prairie and Mr. Floyd D. Murdock, Mr. Edwin H. Murdock and Mrs. Thomas S. Nolan of this city. The funeral service, Rev. Vaughan officiating, will be held at the Nolan residence, 201 Prospect avenue, at 2:00 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The interment will be in Oak Hill cemetery.

Sarah J. Sherman

The remains of the late Sarah J. Sherman were tenderly interred at Oak Hill cemetery yesterday. On account of sickness in the family the services were held in the chapel yesterday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. Rev. Denison conducted the ceremony. The pallbearers were H. C. Proctor, John Terry, Dave Brown and I. J. Fletcher.

Mrs. John Wingate

The remains of Mrs. John H. Wingate, who died in Minneapolis Saturday, will arrive at the C. & N. W. depot Tuesday morning at 9:20, and will be taken direct to Oak Hill cemetery for burial where brief services will be held at the grave.

Notice to Growers

FRANK BOYLAN SURPRISED AT HOME ON WESTERN AVE.

About Twenty-five Friends Make Merry on His Seventeenth Birthday.

On the occasion of the seventeenth anniversary of his birth Frank Boylan was pleasantly surprised at the home of his parents on Western avenue last evening by about twenty-five friends. The evening was spent in cards and other games and in behalf of those who perpetrated the surprise Edward Madden presented Mr. Boylan with a handsome ring.

A Remarkable Dinner.

A remarkable dinner was served recently by a farmer near Ault, Col. The table was set for twelve and the menu consisted of one 5½-pound potato, one 15-pound cabbage, one 10-pound chicken, one 6-pound turnip, one 2-pound onion and three pies made from a 1½-pound apple.

Strange Table Arrangement.

In the czar's palace at Peterhof there is a summer dining house, so arranged that there need not be any servants present during the meal. A bell is touched at the end of every course, and the table and all its contents then descend through the floor, to reappear laden with the dishes for the next course.

Shah Guards His Jewels.

The shah of Persia owns more precious stones than any other monarch or commander in the world. He keeps $100,000,000 worth in a glass jar in his bedroom, but the remainder of his jewels, to the value of many millions, are locked in a huge safe at his palace at Teheran, and a body of fifty men find employment in guarding it.

Damage by Russian Wolves.

Fully $60,000 domestic animals, valued at $800,000, are annually devoured by Russian wolves.

BEET GROWERS IN SESSION TODAY

EFFECTED PERMANENT ORGANIZATION AND NAMED OFFICERS

J. H. BURDICK IS PRESIDENT

Executive Committee Named Will Confer with Sugar Companies and Report at Succeding Meeting.

Permanent organization of the Rock County Beet Growers' association was effected at the meeting held at the Y. M. C. A. building this afternoon. Dr. J. H. Burdick of Milton Junction was made president; J. B. Humphrey of Afton, vice-president; and F. H. Bemis of Janesville, secretary and treasurer.

It was decided that an executive committee to consist of the three officers and four other members of the association named by the chair should confer with the beet sugar companies, both the local one and the one at Menomonie Falls, and report to a subsequent meeting of the association to be called in the near future. The four named by the chair are: W. T. Orfield of Stoughton, C. I. Heggard of Orfordville, T. Decker of Beloit, and John Collins of Porter.

Those attending the session this afternoon were: R. R. Resague of the Janesville station; W. T. Olsen, O. N. Anderson, and O. J. Olsen of Stoughton; J. B. Shaw of Edgerton; G. B. Keith and C. R. Hill of Milton Junction; J. H. Burdick and H. E. Holmes of Milton; L. J. Noey and F. C. Carberg of Grundy's Crossing; Theo. Decker of Beloit; J. B. Humphrey and W. J. Miller of Afton; F. H. Bemis and H. O. Barlow of Hanover; C. K. Van Gelder of Shopshire; Jas. Murphy of Footville; John Collins of Porter; Wm. Roewert of Center; T. L. Kruken of Brodhead; W. M. Tolens of Evansville; U. G. Waite of Frank; C. J. Heggard of Orfordville; Frank Bingham of Koshtong; and John Decker and C. R. Wright of the "storehouse station." No contracts for acreage are to be made until negotiations of the executive committee with the companies are concluded.

HIRING TEACHERS FOR INDIANA NOW

Madison Teachers Are Accepting High Wages in the Indiana Cities.

Madison, Wis.—Madison and other cities in the southern and southwestern part of Wisconsin are in danger of losing a goodly number of their public school teachers. There appears to be a scarcity in school-aids in Indiana and Ohio. School officials of Indiana and Ohio cities are scouring this section of the state in search of teachers. They have been partly successful in Madison. The superintendent of schools of Indianapolis succeeded in getting several of the best teachers and a number of others have intimated that they will leave at the end of the school term. They are willing to go now but the board of education will not release them.

Madison suffers more than any other city from the school teacher hunt because the school-aids here are poorly paid for their services. They receive on the average $50 a month. Another thing to be taken into consideration is that the board is higher in Madison than in other cities in Wisconsin because the state university is situated here. While in some towns teachers can get board and room at $3 or $4 a week they are compelled to pay again as much in this city. Street car fares also count up considerably.

Superintendent of Schools R. B. Dudenrod and the school board are in a quandary over the situation. They are indignant because some teachers break their breach of faith by resigning before their contract expires with the board. Co. William Helm, one of the members of the board, does not believe in being lenient with the school-aids. He is in favor of a plan by which the teacher shall forfeit a whole month's salary if she resigns before her term expires.

Madison has the reputation of having a good corps of teachers and for this reason they are being sought by leading pedagogues of other states.

Underground in a Gold Mine.

Few people realize the extent of the underground workings of a gold mine. One mine in the Colorado. Cripple Creek district, Colorado, has over twenty-six miles of development underground, and is adding to this territory about four miles a year. It would require a week of walking, riding and climbing to inspect even half of this mine.

Public Medical Fund.

The city of Zurich, Switzerland, imposes a medical tax of about 87 cents a head on the whole population above the age of sixteen, which creates an annual revenue of $100,000. This is divided among forty doctors, who receive $2,500 each. In return for this salary they will be compelled to give medical attendance to all citizens of Zurich who may claim their services.

Elephant Memory Good.

Elephants never seem to forget the lessons they learn in captivity. A traveler tells of one which had been trained to carry baggage and which escaped from its keeper and ran wild. Eighteen months afterward it was recognized in a herd of wild elephants. It seemed at first as savage as any of the herd, but when its old keeper boldly seized it by the ear and told it to lie down it obeyed.

Lamb Plays Santa Claus.

The Swedes have a custom at Christmas time of decorating a pet lamb with red ribbons and bells, then leading it with gifts for the family. The lamb is turned loose in the house, and each one attempts to catch it and find the gift.

TWO SHINGLE NAILS LODGED IN STOMACH

Leonard Cook, an Employee of Sugar Co., Has Been in Terrible Agony Since Saturday.

Leonard Cook, an employee of a sugar factory who boards at the home of Mrs. Lizzie Dobson, 163 South Main street, has been in terrible agony since Saturday as the result of swallowing two shingle nails while at work in the cooper shop. It was thought possibly today that he would have to be removed to the hospital and an operation performed.

Mr. Cook is one of the night men in the factory and the work in his cooper shop was not a part of his regular duties. Hence it came about that for the first time in his life he put nails in his mouth while at work with the barrels. Dr. Woods who is attending him says that it is not an unusual thing for shinglers and lathers to swallow nails and that they usually escape serious consequences.

MILTON COLLEGE VICTOR IN GAME

Defeated High School Basket Ball Five by a Score of 30 to 25 Saturday.

In one of the liveliest games of basketball ever played in this city the Milton college team was victorious over the high school team by a score of 30 to 25 Saturday evening. In the passing game the local team was superior to the college five, but the means as accurate basket throwers and thus many goals were lost. Guy Polan, the center on the Milton team, proved to be an expert in placing the ball in the basket and missed only two or three of all the throws he attempted, either free or from the two-point line.

Sennett did his usual good work for the Janesville five and the other four members of the team played a uniform game. The first half ended in a score of 17 to 16 in favor of Milton and immediately after the commencement of the second half the high school took the lead and kept it until the last several minutes of play, when Milton succeeded in throwing a number of baskets in quick succession and making the final score: Milton, 30; Janesville, 25. The two teams were composed as follows:

Milton High School
H. Babcock.....f..... Morse
M. Price.....f..... Carle
Guy Polan.....c..... Caldwell
Lowther.....g..... Sennett
Johanson.....g..... Galbraith

Squash Pointers.

The Game Described—The Court, Serving and Scoring.

By FREDERICK R. TOOMBS.
Author of "Rackets, Squash and Court Tennis."

The popularity of that splendid indoor game, squash, is rapidly increasing throughout the country. Scores of new courts are being constructed, and manufacturers report a marked increase in the demand for the implements used.

One of the new converts to the game is Frank Gould, the millionaire, who recently built a squash court on the roof of his mansion in Fifth avenue, New York.

In squash the player must observe the important rule providing that he must face the side wall and not the front wall while in play; also he must play the ball from a low degree of pitch. It is very necessary that the squash player develop correct form. Form is of vital importance, just as in racket, golf, etc., and the man that is content to continue his progress in the game without trimming the rough edges will shortly find himself sinking into hopeless mediocrity.

A squash court is thirty-one feet six inches long when it conforms to regulations, but as in rackets the courts are found to vary in size in different localities. The playing space is enclosed by four walls. The front wall should have a playing face sixteen feet high. The service line, above which the ball must strike on the serve, is six feet from the floor, with the play line—on top of the telltale—rising two feet from the floor. After the serve the ball must strike above the telltale, which is of wood, and as most courts have a cement front wall the sound of the ball striking the telltale is plainly distinguishable. In some courts ventilators are placed between the play line, or top of the telltale, and the floor. In such cases the telltale has a facing of wire netting. The breadth of the court, the front and back walls, is sixteen feet three inches. A cross court line is placed twenty-one feet eight inches from the front wall, and the section between this line and the back wall is cut in half by a line midway between the two side walls. The side walls are twelve feet high. The back wall playing face should be four and a half feet high, with the gallery for officials and spectators above it. A netting protects the gallery.

The server projects the ball from either the right or left side of the court, as he chooses, and after hitting the front wall "up" or above the service line it must rebound into the rear court opposite that in which the server stood, the rule providing that the man putting the ball in play must stand with one foot in either of the two half courts back of the cross court line. After the initial serve the server alternates from one court to the other. Should the ball strike either of the side walls, the floor or ceiling in its course to the front wall on the serve the server, or hand in, loses and becomes hand out, his opponent then, of course, takes ing the serve. Only the hand in scores. Several sets of rules have been framed for squash, and they vary in some details. Certain rules provide that a ball striking a side wall in serving counts merely as a fault and allow two faults to the server before he forfeits the ball. Others permit a rally to continue should the service return the first ball which the server sends out of bounds.

Willie Hoppe.

The Billiard Phenomenon Again Touring the Country. His Marvellous Shots.

While the billiard champions of the United States are spending their time playing pool and in commenting on the weather and the price of cheese in Canada, one world-renowned American expert is lending interest to the winter months. He is Willie Hoppe, the sensational "boy wonder," who is touring

WILLIE HOPPE, EXECUTING A MASSIVE SHOT, THE COUNTRY GIVING EXHIBITIONS AND PLAYING PROMINENT AND MANIPULATORS IN VARIOUS SECTIONS. HOPPE, WHILE AS MUCH OF A WONDER AS EVER, IS NOT SO MUCH OF A BOY AS HE USED TO BE, STRANGE TO SAY, AND WITH INCREASED AGE HE HAS ATTAINED EVEN GREATER ABILITY AS A BILLIARDIST THAN HE FORMERLY POSSESSED.

Hoppe is undoubtedly the cleverest trick shot expert in the United States, and he has astonished the world's best exponents of the art. He is a native of New York state, and he learned to play billiards under the tutelage of his father. His mother, too, is an accomplished cue handler, one of the best women shots in the world.

Hoppe recently finished first in a tournament in Brooklyn, in which he gave heavy handicaps to some of the best players of the east.

One of Hoppe's cleverest shots is executed as follows:

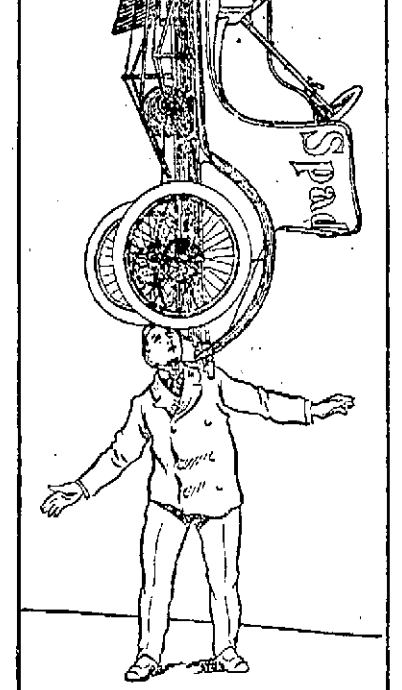

Two balls are placed against the farther rail, "frozen" to each other and to the rail. The cue ball is placed in the middle of the table and, say, to the left of the two balls. Hoppe plays against the nearer of the two balls, sending the other (to which it is frozen) along the rail to the end cushion. It rebounds and comes back along the cushion, and the cue ball, after rebounding straight across the table, comes back to meet the second ball, thus scoring a point.

WONDERFUL STRONG MAN.

Paul Spadoni Balances With Carriages, Sewing Machines and Automobiles.

Paul Spadoni has astonished American athletes by his sensational exhibitions of strength and as a juggler and a balancer. Spadoni is an Italian, who is now touring in the east.

One of his "stunts" is shown in the accompanying illustration. It consists

PAUL SPADONI BALANCING AN AUTOMOBILE.

In seizing a thoroughly equipped auto, raising it to his shoulder, balancing it there and taking off the wheels, etc. Spadoni also does similar maneuvers with carriages and sewing machines. Physicians state that Spadoni is one of the most remarkable specimens of physical development ever seen in this country. Progressive theatrical agents heard of him and immediately signed contracts with him for a series of appearances in vaudeville.

Delhi to Go Abroad.

Famous Keene Stake Winner to Compete For English Turf Prizes.

Horsemen everywhere will be astonished to learn that Delhi, the peerless champion of the James R. Keene racing stable, is to be sent to England to compete next spring. Mr. Keene has long shown fondness for the British turf and at one time conducted one of the largest stables ever seen on the English courses.

Delhi is one of the best of last year's three-year-olds. He heads the list of three-year-olds winners with a total of earnings amounting to almost $77,000. Think of a mere horse earning well on toward twice as much money in five months as President Roosevelt receives for an entire year of service in Washington!

Delhi rose to international fame last season by capturing the Great Republic stakes at Saratoga, N. Y., amounting to $50,000, and the Withers and Belmont stakes at Morris Park, N. Y.

Mr. Keene's horses did remarkably well on metropolitan tracks last season, and the veteran owner feels encouraged to extend his turf operations during the coming summer over a still greater area.

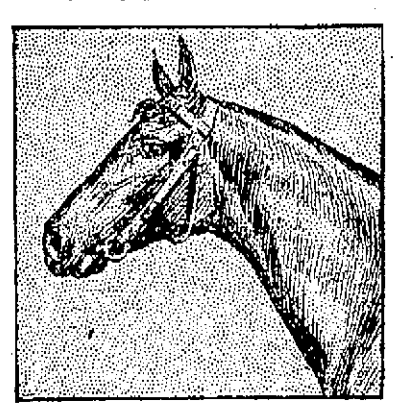

Among the winning owners of 1904 Herman B. Durey stands at the head of the list. His horses won nearly all of the big events for two-year-olds, and but for the fact that the entries of many of the horses racing in his colors were void in numerous stake events through the death of the nominator, William C. Whitney, it is safe to say that at least $50,000 more would have been added to the total.

James R. Keene is the nearest to Durey, with a total of $159,105.94, won in thirty-first, twenty-six seconds and twenty-three thirds, almost half of the amount being won by Delhi.

The admirers of Tiverton are confident that the gelding will be able to give the champion trotting race mare Sweet Marie all the racing that she will want next season. This would of course mean a series of races between the two, probably on the two in three plan.

If both horses should come out next summer in the best of condition a series of such races would be very interesting and would undoubtedly draw big crowds, for speed is always more or less of an attraction.

The trials against time by one horse are not, however, in many parts of the country as popular as they once were.

DELHI, WINNER OF GREAT REPUBLIC, WITHERS AND BELMONT STAKES.

But if after a few races one horse should show a decided superiority over the other then there would be no use for the other.

Some system of handicapping should be devised whereby horses of extreme speed would have a value as race horses. It remains for some bright secretary to evolve some system whereby race horses do not destroy their value by getting too fast a mark. If some such system was put in operation, then there would not be so much juggling to avoid a fast record.

HOLCOMBE AFTER RECORD.

The Connecticut Race Is Having a New Auto Built.

Bert Holcombe of Hartford, Conn., who, with Lawrence Duffie, established the existing automobile record between New York and Chicago of fifty-six hours and fifty-eight minutes, is having a new car built at a big factory especially designed for a transcontinental run next summer, in which he will endeavor to lower the record between San Francisco and New York.

The new car will embody several new features to allow for extra long runs between points where fuel is not available.

No date has yet been set for the trial, but it will be late in the summer, when the roads have become firm and the danger of fogs such as held up other record hunters have passed.

Basket Ball Boom.

The basket ball season, which is now in full swing, promises to be the best in the history of the sport. In addition to the many games scheduled between the athletic club, college and school teams, a number of matches of far more importance are already arranged, and more are to follow.

Schutt Leads the Britons.

Warren Schutt's latest stunt in England was to win four events at one set of games. He ran the hundred in 11.5 seconds, which is fast work for a two miler. His other victories were in the 440 yard run, mile run and weight throw. Schutt is a Cornell graduate.

Bowser Aids Tramps

He Refuses One a Dime, and Then His Conscience Accuses Him—Sees Sad Fate For the Hobo and Plays the Good Samaritan.

(Copyright, 1904, by T. C. McClure.)

M R. BOWSER had been reading his evening paper for a quarter of an hour when he laid it aside with a sigh and began walking up and down the room. Mrs. Bowser watched him for awhile, saw that he had something on his mind and finally inquired:

"Has anything happened during the day to bother you?"

"Nothing of a business nature," he answered, "but as I got off the car this evening a little thing happened that has kept me thinking. A tramp who was shivering with cold and looked as if he hadn't had a square meal for three days came up and struck me for 10 cents."

"And you gave him a quarter, of course?"

"No, I had had a row with the conductor and was mad, and I told the tramp that he ought to be arrested."

"Well," he slunk away, and I came along, but the look of reproach he gave me has been like an accusing voice. I am ashamed of myself. It was a heartless thing to do."

"Your conscience needn't cry out too loudly," she observed. "After cook had fed three great big tramps today along came a fourth one. She wanted him to passed out, and the cat meowed two or three times and crept back under the lounge to finish her nap and await further developments. Mr. Bowser had an idea to carry out, and fortune favored him. He reached the corner, where he had left the street car and been accosted to find four men hanging about, and one of them was the very chap who had struck him for a dime. There was no mistaking his lop shoulder and sandy hair and whining voice.

"My man, didn't you ask me for a dime about two hours ago?" was queried of him.

"Yes, I think I did," was the reply.

"And I turned you down, for which I am sorry. You must have thought me a brute?"

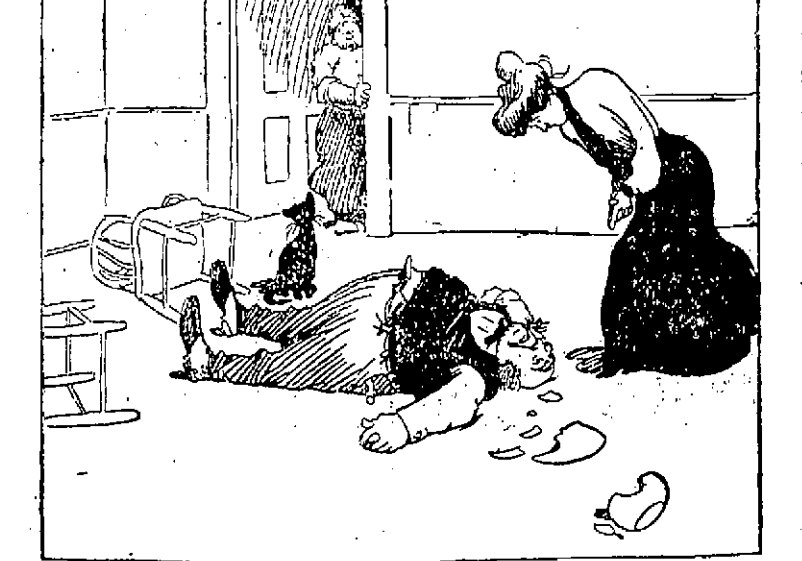

"I did," was the blunt reply, although the tramp was puzzled to know what was coming.

"Well, I'm here to show you that I'm not. Come down to the house and get a bite to eat, and we will talk of money matters and your starving wife and children later on. Who are those other men?"

"They are also poor fellows with starving wives and children."

"Then come along, boys."

Mr. Bowser appeared at his basement door with five objects of charity carry a bundle of stuff out of the back yard, but he very pointedly assured her that he was not in the labor market. He may have been the same man who gave you such a heartbroken look."

"I know that the average tramp is deserving of no sympathy, but there are cases where a good man may have to appeal to charity. Suppose the man who spoke to me had a wife and children, and was a good fellow, and I presume he must have felt in his heart when I so cruelly turned him down! He knew that I had money in my pocket and that a dime was the merest trifle to me, and yet I showed him that I did not care whether he starved or lived on."

"You may meet him again some day, and you can get even by handing him a double portion. Shall we have a game of cards this evening to pass away the time?"

"Certainly not. Do you take me for a man of iron? I have just been telling you that my conscience accuses me of wrongdoing a fellow being who may be found dead on the street before morning, and you calmly turn around and ask me if we shan't have a game of cards. Woman, have you a heart of stone?"

"I have fed more tramps than you ever saw, and if there is one left who has not called at the basement door I am not going to worry myself about it."

"No, you wouldn't worry if half the town was starving to death, but I happen to have a different feeling. Here we are, warm, cozy and surrounded with every luxury. I have over a hundred dollars in my pocket and expect to close a deal tomorrow whereby I shall make twice as much, and yet when a starving, freezing man comes up to me and asks for the merest pittance I refuse it. It isn't right, Mrs. Bowser—it is far from right!"

"If you have a hundred dollars in your pocket, why not give me a couple to buy handkerchiefs? I have only one left. Your wife ought to come before a tramp."

"There you go, twisting and citching!" he shouted. "We were talking about a starving man—a man with a wife and children wanting for bread; a man who has been looking for work for years and years and failed to find it; a man who has probably gone off to throw himself into the river because of man's inhumanity to man, and you coolly drag handkerchiefs into the discussion. By gum, but you make me so mad that I want to kill somebody!"

"I simply said that I had only one handkerchief left to my name, and that had a hole in it," she quietly replied. The cat came out from under the lounge with a grin on his face, and Mr. Bowser stood and looked at his wife for a long minute. Then he uttered a "humph" and started down the hall and donned his overcoat and hat.

"Are you going out?" queried Mrs. Bowser.

He "humphed" again for reply and behind him, and when the cook greeted him with a look of mingled wonder and indignation he said to her:

"You can go upstairs, and I will attend to these men myself. I presume there are some cold victuals left?"

"Is it a charity hall you are to open to such as them?" she asked.

"Never mind, my good woman, but run right along."

The cook disappeared upstairs, growling as she went, and Mr. Bowser explored the refrigerator and the pantry and set out everything he could find that was eatable. The tramps looked on in wonder, though nudging and winking at each other at intervals, and by and by they were told to sit down at the table and fill up. There was no delay on their part, and for the first five minutes Mr. Bowser's face was beaming. He felt that he had cleared his conscience in great shape. Then, addressing himself to the lop shoulder, sandy haired man, he said:

"When you asked me for a dime this evening why did you not tell me that you had a starving wife and children?"

"I—I forgot!" replied the fellow, with his mouth full of food.

At that two others began to giggle and chuckle, and as the good Samaritan looked at them for an explanation one of them roared out and then said:

"Boys, he's the most inhuman old guy we ever struck! Think of our starving wives and children and then think of this fodder before us!"

There was laughter and pounding on the table, and one of the "patients" suggested that Mr. Bowser should get the wine ready. The scales fell from his eyes, his face reddened up with his rising temper, and he was about to make a remark when the five men suddenly burst into hilarious song. It was a song about "Maggie Murphy's Home," and Mrs. Bowser hadn't time to judge of its merits when it was interrupted.

There was a great hullabaloo in the basement. There were crashes and smashes and whoops and swear words. The cook came running downstairs, and the cat came scolding out from his retreat, and for three or four minutes confusion reigned. Then the sound of footsteps galloping away were heard, and then came silence.

The two women descended to the basement to find the table overturned and the chairs upset, and lying on the floor of the hall in the most dilapidated condition was Mr. Bowser. He had met the enemy, and he was theirs.

"He might have known it!" exclaimed the cook.

"But he has cleared his conscience," replied Mrs. Bowser, "and we will try to get him upstairs and poultice him back to life."

THE ILLINI

A STORY OF THE PRAIRIES

By HON. CLARK E. CARR

ALTHOUGH published only on the first of December it has been necessary to put the book on the press since that time.

The distinguished author seems to have done the almost impossible thing—a successful combination of fiction and history. While the book is in narrative form, the great men who appear—Lincoln, Grant, Douglas, Logan—are drawn with the most perfect fidelity by one who was intimate with them all.

It is this strong personal element which is one of the reasons for the success of "The Illini." There are very few residents of the State who have not more or less distinct recollections of her most heroic figures, and are not delighted to find their memories stirred in such an eloquent fashion.

"No American can rise from a perusal of this book without a vastly increased respect, based upon authentic knowledge, for the people of Illinois; and to the Illinoisian it will come almost as a gospel of enlightenment and encouragement to interest himself in the past history and present fame of so majestic a commonwealth."—THE DIAL.

A STORY OF THE PRAIRIES

By HON. CLARK E. CARR

ALTHOUGH published only on the first of December it has been necessary to put the book on the press since that time.

The distinguished author seems to have done the almost impossible thing—a successful combination of fiction and history. While the book is in narrative form, the great men who appear—Lincoln, Grant, Douglas, Logan—are drawn with the most perfect fidelity by one who was intimate with them all.

It is this strong personal element which is one of the reasons for the success of "The Illini." There are very few residents of the State who have not more or less distinct recollections of her most heroic figures, and are not delighted to find their memories stirred in such an eloquent fashion.

"No American can rise from a perusal of this book without a vastly increased respect, based upon authentic knowledge, for the people of Illinois; and to the Illinoisian it will come almost as a gospel of enlightenment and encouragement to interest himself in the past history and present fame of so majestic a commonwealth."—THE DIAL.

These New Year's Resolutions.
Mrs. Parkinson—Why, Henry, are you smoking? And just last night you resolved to stop using tobacco during 1904!
Mr. Parkinson—I'm not using tobacco, Julia. This is one of those cigars that you gave me for Christmas.

Making Up For Lost Time.
Black—Just look at the smoke pouring out of the windows of Mr. Brown's house! Quick, call the fire engines!
Slack—Don't get excited. Brown swore off smoking on New Year's, and he's making up for lost time.

New Year's Persia's Easter.
New Year's day in Persia is celebrated much as our Easter is. Fancy eggs are sent as presents.

Long-Felt Want.
A meteorologist has invented an apparatus to foretell the coming of squalls, and he will confer a benefit on the world by making them cheap enough for family use.—Chattanooga Times.

Bear's Flesh Good Eating.
The value of bear's ham as an article of food is pretty generally known, but it is not, perhaps, quite so well understood that every part of the animal is just as useful as that of the hog.

ONLY 5 MORE DAYS

Of Our Sale of Pianos at Factory
Cost Prices To Close Out the W. H. Shnaekel Stock.

SALE ENDS SATURDAY.

"Time and tide wait for no one," it is just as true that if you wish to buy a strictly high-grade piano at factory cost price, you must do so at once for, after this sale is over, we shall ship all pianos remaining unsold to Milwaukee. Will you wait, and, after we are gone, buy on the go—call you can—and it you can't get that take-less plan? Now is the time to buy.

If you were in our position, which would you rather have, the money the pianos cost you, or go to the enormous expense of shipping the goods away? You would much rather have the money in your pocket, wouldn't you? Well, we are just like you in that respect. It is a simple business proposition, founded on common sense and business economy.

The high character and quality of these goods and the reliability of the house that is selling them, no honest man can call in question, they are all fully warranted by the manufacturers, and again by us, and just as represented or its no sale.

Notwithstanding the exceedingly unfavorable weather, the pianos are being rapidly taken—people are coming from far and near for them. We intend to close out the balance of this stock before Saturday. No cost or former price shall deter us from closing this stock out before Saturday.

The reason why we do not advertise the names of the makes of pianos we are selling, is because the manufacturers would certainly object, but we would say that they are of the regular line that we carry constantly in stock at our Milwaukee store.

Shrewd buyers are showing substantial appreciation of the opportunity we are giving them to secure the best pianos at greatly reduced prices. It only goes to show what real bargains in good pianos will do, when offered the public in good faith. You can save from $50 to $100 at this sale. That would make a big payment on a piano at the regular price, wouldn't it? But, in that case, the other fellow would have that much money in his pocket, and you would still owe as much on your piano, as you can buy one of us for now—you actually save that much, and, saving it is just like earning it you know.

We are not publishing the names of the people to whom we have sold pianos in this sale, but, if you will come to the store, we will tell you who they are.

Brand new pianos that sell in the regular way at from $200 to $275 are going at $108, $156, $164, $178, $187 to $198. We will make the terms of payment to suit you, and you can't afford to let the chance slip to get one of them.

Then those $300 to $375 pianos, you always expected to have to pay that much to get a piano, you can secure one of these fine ones for the mere sum of $217 to $238.

We tell you candidly you can't afford to stay at home without investigating this opportunity of a lifetime. $10 to $25 down and $1.25 a week to $10 a month takes any piano in the store. Square pianos, $10, $27, to $28; $5 to $10 cash down and $1 to $2 per month.

Organs—well, you can take one of them home at just about your own price and on payments so easy you will have no trouble in meeting them. The store is open every evening during this sale.

Remember the place, No. 10 Jackson St., one-half block south of Milwaukee street, Janesville, Wis.
